CHARGE FRAUD IN TRANSFER OF OIL STOCK

Superior court today was asked to set aside, as fraudulent, the transfer of 24,182 shares of oil stock, made five years ago.

In a suit filed by Rose H. Lewis against Anton Schulte, F. V. Schulte and Emilie D. Voights, it was charged that when Anton Schulte signed notes aggregating $5800 on August 18, 1931, he knew that he would not be able to pay the notes when due, therefore two months after he transferred his 24,182 shares of stock in the Oak Grove Oil Company to F. B. Schulte and Emilie D. Voights. This was done to evade any subsequent judgment on the notes, it is claimed.

Marie Weinberger, holder of the notes, did obtain judgment for $5815 in 1935, it is alleged, and the sheriff subsequently reported that he could find no property of Anton Schulte upon which to levy. Marie Weinberger later assigned her judgment to the plaintiff, Rose Lewis, who now brings the suit to set aside the transfer of the oil stock.

With the oil stock returned to Anton Schulte, the plaintiff then could levy her court judgment upon it, it was pointed out.

units will be $20,000 ($150,000), to be awarded to the holders of tickets whose horse finishes first in the Derby; $15,000 ($75,000) to be awarded to those whose horse finishes second, and $10,000 ($50,000) to be awarded those whose horse finishes third.

The prize fund today was regarded as large for a Derby Sweepstakes, usually small because of the brief selling period after the Grand National Sweep at the end of March.

It compares with the 1935 low record fund for the Derby, $1204,558 ($6,022,890).

The five horses leading in the betting are Taj Akbar, 6 to 1; pay up, 13 to 1; Noble King, 7 to 1; Boswell, 13 to 1, and Hissar, 100 to 1.

At the first interval in the draw today 14 horses had been drawn, with counterfoils of 165 tickets holders. Of this total 76 ticket holders were Americans and 22 Canadians.

Ticket holders who drew horses among the five leading in the betting included:

Taj Akbar (6 to 1, favorite)—Ticket MQ-05622, "Dark Horse," Canada.

(Canadian law forbids publication of names of holders.)

Boswell (13 to 1)—Charlie, 417 South Hill street, Los Angeles.

Bala Hissar (100 to 1)—C. W. Hutchinson, 445 North Gramercy street, Los Angeles; Ticket MZ71715, Adana, Canada.

At the conclusion of the day's drawing, 984 tickets had been drawn on 82 horses. In the tickets, worth at least $2200 each, 432 were held by Americans. Residual and consolation prizes will be drawn Monday.

EUROPEAN WAR UNLIKELY THIS YEAR OR NEXT LEGION MURDER

crushing of the Ethiopian empire which set a new all time record for speed and comparative cost of colonial conquest—has increased respect on the continent for Italy's fighting machine.

At the same time it has increased the fears of smaller nations, particularly those trying to cling to dreams of colonial empires of their own.

Within two weeks France will see power passed over to the so-called social revolutionaries of the popular front. Then France must either adopt provocative attitudes toward the Fascist dictators, Mussolini and Adolf Hitler, or the socialists must bury their creeds so that France may continue quietly its traditional policy of bottling up Germany.

Working against time the British foreign office is trying to make peace with Italy before the new French government comes into power.

The talks yesterday of Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador to London, with foreign office chiefs were a prelude to a possible change in British attitude toward penalties against Italy when the League of Nations council meets at Geneva June 16.

If Great Britain can arrange its affairs with Italy while France is marking time and waiting for the new government to come in, one of the most dangerous corners in Europe will have been turned and one of the few potential causes of war removed.

Those who knew Leon Blum, Socialist leader and prospective French premier, insists that he never will risk war to enforce Socialist dogma.

Blum has declared explicitly that it is none of France's business what kind of governments Italy and Germany pick for themselves at home. This might be interpreted as an indication that France soon will patch up her affairs with Italy and thus remove a second potential cause of disturbance.

There remains only French-German friction over the remilitarization of the Rhineland as a really serious threat against France.

With the coming into power in France of a left wing government there is no doubt that relations between Russia and France will be closer than at any time. Russia has Europe's largest army—a standing army of 1,300,000 excellently equipped men. She also has Europe's largest and most powerful air force. France has an excellent navy, largest of any continental power, and her army, by making use of the costly Maginot line of fortifications on the German frontier, can effectively check any land invader from the east. Her air force is still the second largest in Europe.

With France and Russia pledged to a hand in hand foreign policy their combined potential war strength might well be one of Europe's best hopes for peace. It is hard to imagine any single power trying to fight on two fronts against those two great military forces and so long as France maintains unbroken her chain of alliances with Russia and the little Balkan ententes there does not seem to be any other source of conflict which might endanger war on the continent.

Prospects for peace have not been brighter for some time. Yet it is the diplomatic proverb in Europe that the danger of war is never so great as when there is peace.

CAMPAIGN TO HALT ROOSEVELT FAILS

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(UP)—The pre-convention campaign to prevent President Roosevelt's nomination has collapsed gradually but completely, an examination of the state-by-state record showed today. The extent to which it demonstrated a slump in Roosevelt popularity is disputed.

The stop-Roosevelt movement tentatively organized by Alfred E. Smith, former Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts, the late Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland and former Sen. James A. Reed of Missouri ceased to function more than a month ago. The movement may be revived after the nominating convention.

Most of those leaders met in Smith's skyscraper office in April and decided it was not possible to fight in a national nominating convention packed with office holders and controlled by the New Deal administration.

Members of the Las Patos club who have been guests at the club include Mr. and Mrs. Leo McLaughlin and daughter, Gertrude; Mrs. Allen Dow and two children, Matt and Jean Dow, all of Pasadena; Mrs. Tim Noy and son, Tom Noy; Bokford Tyler and Mr. Smith; Dr. Emil Brinkmeyer and wife and daughter, Charlotte, of Los Angeles, visited local former friends recently. groups for his religious or political beliefs alone.

"The Legion undoubtedly has had many victims," Inspector Henry I. Navarre, commander of the police homicide bureau, said. "Just how many, we can't say at this time."

Navarre believes the victims of the Legion had been taken largely from among relatives and acquaintances of its members. He and his investigators already had determined that Poole was innocent of the charge for which the Legion tried and executed him. His wife, who gave birth to a son the day after he was slain, said he had never beaten her. Authorities of Herman Koffler hospital, where she was confined, said her body showed no bruises or other indications of violence.

More Proud Than Afraid

The 16 men held, ranging in age from 16 to 60, all factory workers, and all seemingly more proud than afraid, maintained a close-lipped silence. Navarre indicated that death was the Legion's penalty for members who told its secrets, and that the men held were afraid of the vengeance of their brethren still at large. He believed that the Legion had 60 members, and he ordered the arrest of the other 44. Urban Lipps, 32, one of the men held, was the most communicative. He admitted having taken part in the execution of Poole, but said he had participated in no other "jobs." He had been a member for six months, he said, and he understood that the Legion had "taken care" of a number of "rats."

In the homes of some of the arrested 16, police found some of its literature, which showed that its chief function was to "uphold protestantism and combat communism." The arrested members indicated that it had also set out to maintain the "purity" of the home and because of that, its victims had been husbands accused of marital sins.

Lipps intimated, police said, that one of the requirements of membership in the Ku Klux Klan, which still survives, a weak shadow of its strength a decade ago, Lipps understood that the legion had chapters in all parts of the country and hundreds of members, but he knew no details of the national organization. The national commander, he said, had the title of major-general but he did not know his name or his headquarters.

The legion held secret meetings. There, police said, members reported the moral lapses of neighbors, acquaintances, and even of relatives—chiefly the relatives by marriage. Lipps said that Poole's alleged mistreatment of his wife was reported by two of Mrs. Poole's relatives.

Police News

Several thefts reported to sheriff's officers yesterday and today were being investigated today. H. C. Rurup, 2730 North Flower, Santa Ana, reported to Deputy James Musick, a self-driving drill press and set of six dies and taps were stolen between Monday and yesterday. Deputies Walt Dungan and Ezra Stanley learned that 2600 tomato plants were in the loot taken by someone who entered John Viera's garden on Oakhurst between Ball and Katella Wednesday night. Homer May, of Yorba Linda, told the officers someone stole 25 white Begonias pulled the night of May 17. A bronze plaque from the Yorba Linda Woman's club was stolen two weeks ago, George Kellogg informed Sheriff Logan Jackson yesterday. The plaque, 14x18 inches was taken from its place above the club fireplace.

So Tom Guill of Yorba Linda tied the bull outside and contacted the sheriff's office. He reported he found the bull at his place, tied it up and wanted the owner, whoever he might be, to come and get it. Officers learned it was one of the 300 Mexican bulls pastured on the Keene ranch, in Telegraph canyon, and asked Keene to take it back to the ranch. Two recent complaints from the Yorba Linda district said some of the 300 Keene ranch bulls and some of the 90 bulls at the Adolf Friend ranch, Yorba Linda, had a yen for wandering and had been feasting in the corn patch.

A white-faced yearling calf, belonging to Orange Police Officer Ray Krueger of 1039 North Glassford avenue, Orange, reported strayed yesterday afternoon, was found along the Santa Fe railroad right-of-way by Poundmaster H. D. Pickering later. It had been killed by a passing train.

Take Coal Act Defeat With Smile

Greeting the blow with cheery smiles, Senator Joseph F. Guffey (Dem., Pa.), right, and Representative J. Buell Snyder (Dem., Pa.), are shown leaving the U. S. Supreme Court after the 6-3 decision blasting as unconstitutional the Guffey-Snyder bill, setting up a "Little NRA" for the bituminous coal industry. Because the decision was aimed mainly at the act's labor provisions, and three justices held price-fixing to be valid, the administration may attempt to salvage the latter feature as a means of stabilizing the industry.

From the Administration's standpoint, they should change the name of that song, "Gloomy Sunday," to the following day, judging from the way two Federal courts chose Monday to rule that both the Guffey Coal Act, and the 1935 Relief Act, were illegal. . . . All right, boys! The New Deal has had about enough justice. . . . What it needs now, is mercy.

I never saw any one machine get so many tickets for driving through a restricted zone. . . . Of course, it isn't exactly the fault of the tellow sitting in the driver's seat, as somebody evidently gave him the wrong road map.

Whatever else may be thought of the Administration's recovery policies, never let it be said that they didn't put a lot of judges back to work.

And far be it from me to gossip, but it's beginning to look like almost every brainchild of the New Dealers is illegitimate.

DEATH NOTICES

A WORD OF COMFORT
There is an alternative to every choice which makes one choice excludes the other. You, yourself, determine whether to thank God for His blessings or to curse Him for not having saved you from sorrow. No one can proceed to two different choices at the same time. You must strive with God's help to have your grief make you something finer, nobler and kinder than you ever were before or you must walk the other way. A Him to choose you to choose right and then to be increasingly loyal to your ideals.

City Trash Men
Pick Up
Shopping News

The mysterious disappearance of 550 copies of Orange County Shopping News was solved by city police yesterday afternoon at the city dump.

According to Henry Hodges, who reported the papers stolen, they were tossed off the delivery car at the curb in front of 2012 North Ross, so that John Henderson might deliver them when he returned from school.

The sequence of events during the afternoon went something like this: Delivery, 2 p. m.; city trash truck arrived in the neighborhood, 2:30, trash men loading the bundles onto their truck; John Henderson couldn't find bundles when he got home from school; John contacted Hodges and Hodges contacted Detective Lieutenant Charles W. Wolford; Detective Wolford combed neighborhood, learning from a neighbor of the trash truck appearance on the scene; Detective Wolford found the papers at the city dump just as they were about to be set ablaze, at 4:15; took them to news office, 4:30, finding it closed; took them back to news office, 5:30, still finding it closed; delivered them to John Henderson in person, 5:30; called Chief Floyd Howard, 6:30; Hodges wishing to know whether paper thieves had been apprehended with loot.

ORANGE HIGH SCHOOL PAPER WINS JOURNALISM CONTEST; MAX MILLER, AUTHOR, SPEAKS

Orange high school's Reflector captured major honors in the 1936 journalism contest of Santa Ana Junior college, receiving "best all-around paper" and "best sports story" awards at the annual journalism banquet for county high schools in Santa Ana last night, as Max Miller, noted writer, addressed the students.

The awards this year, however, were much more widely distributed; Frank Rogers and C. F. Skirvin, of the Santa Ana Journal; County Treasurer T. E. Stephens, former managing editor of the Santa Ana Register, and Mrs. Stephenson; Thomas E. Williams, printing instructor in Santa Ana Junior college and high school; George E. Hart, Santa Ana Register, who was one of the contest judges. The other judges, Braden Finch, editor of the Santa Ana Journal, and James S. Farquhar, editor and publisher of the Huntington Beach News, were not present.

Not only increased competition but increased interest in the annual contest established two years ago by the Junior College Department of Journalism, was evidenced at last night's banquet in the Green Cat cafe, Santa Ana. The first banquet drew slightly more than 40 guests. There were 129 journalism students, instructors, newspaper representatives and special guests present last night. John H. McCoy, director of journalism at the college, presided over the banquet, and Director D. K. Hammond, head of the institution, presented the awards.

Best Newspaper
Selection of the Orange Reflector as best all-around paper, and that of the Brea-Olinda Wildcat News as best all-around paper published as part of a local newspaper, were made by unanimous decision of the three judges.

Two-to-one decisions decided the remaining four awards, which were: best editorial, Huntington Beach High Lights; best news story, Fullerton Pleiades; best feature story, Tustin Broadcaster; best sports story, Orange Reflector.

Tom Hart, son of an Orange editor, is editor-in-chief of the winning Orange Reflector.

The Santa Ana Generator was not entered in the contest.

Special Awards
Special awards were made by McCoy to college students, not members of El Don's staff, for the most outstanding service to the paper. The freshman award went to Robert Swanson, reporter from Surprise, Nebraska, high school, who received a copy of Max Miller's book, "The Great Trek." Miss Edna Wilson, of Santa Ana, copy reader and college news service representative, received the sophomore award, a copy of Miller's new book, "Fog and Men on Berkeley." Miller autographed the copies.

Miller's 20-minute talk, in which he declared he never again would address an audience other than journalism students or those actually interested in writing, was the highlight of the evening. The writer's wit was sparkling brightly, and his description of women's club gatherings paying $2 to look at him, but "not being willing to pay a nickel for one of his books" vied with his account of a tour with Alaskan reindeer herders. Henceforth, said Miller, he will appear only before those who are interested in his subject: writing.

He concluded his talk with serious advice to student writers on the subject of a career. "Those of you who are going to be writers, already know it," he said. "You are going to write because you have to write."

Rosapaw Present
Greetings had been brought to the assembled students by Frank Rosapaw, Placentia Courier publisher, who is president of the California Newspaper Publishers association. Rosapaw outlined the program of his association for the term of the newspaper industry, and promised cooperation to the rising generation of newspaper workers.

Robert L. Brown, of Santa Ana, with Miss Ruth Armstrong as accompanist sang two numbers, which shared generous applause with marimba selections by Dr. Ralph Murane, of Santa Ana.

High school journalism instructors present with their groups last night were: Miss Virginia Jones, of Orange; John B. Kennedy, Anaheim; Miss Helen Moore, Huntington Beach; Everett Nelson, Fullerton; Emma B. Hield, Tustin; Miss Viola Barry, Newport Harbor; Miss Rosemary Bennett, Brea-Olinda; John Crossley, Valencia; John Findlay, Laguna Beach; also members of the class of Mrs. Cassidy, Garden Grove.

Special guests of the evening invited by McCoy included: John "Ski" Dunlap, former Santa Ana newspaperman now with the United Press in Los Angeles, and Mrs. Dunlap; Dean Calvin Flint, of Junior college, and Mrs. Flint; Mason Yould, editor, Santa Ana Register; City Editor Ray Arguello, and Mrs. Arguello, of the Orange Daily News; City Editor Jack Elwanger, of the Santa Ana Journal; Gerald Will, Garden Grove News; Paul Neff, Santa Ana business man formerly city editor of The Register; Santa Ana School Superintendent Frank Henderson and Mrs. Henderson; Mrs. Eleanor Elliott, society editor of the Santa Ana Register; Robert Speed, Santa Ana

Police News

Ernest "Hi" Gill, 31, of the 400-block, West Fourth, was booked at county jail on a charge of assault and battery about 1 a. m. today. The complaint was signed by Mrs. Madeline Gill, his wife, after neighbors reported to Officers Chet Gross and J. B. Stephenson that Gill allegedly was striking her.

Accused of molesting two young women at Fourth and Minter streets about 9 o'clock last night, Harry Lewis, 36, of 833 French street, was arrested by Officers J. W. Foster and W. H. Heard on a charge of being drunk. The medical examination report declared Lewis "moderately intoxicated, very nervous and talkative and very insulting." Lewis told the doctor he had been drinking beer. Capt. R. S. Elliott set bail at $50.

Victor Rohde, Route 1, Box 276, Garden Grove, reported to city police last night his small coupe was stolen from its downtown parking place, Fourth and Main. A statewide teletype message was broadcast and then almost immediately cancelled when Officers C. V. Adams and F. L. Grouard reported the car found at Fifth and Main.

As Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Corsey, 501 South Sycamore, returned home shortly after midnight last night, a burglar who apparently did not have time to take anything, jumped from a closet where he was hiding and dashed from the house. Mrs. Corsey reported to Officers V. E. B. Sherwood and Roy Hartley that her husband was putting the car in the garage as she entered the house alone. She screamed as she suddenly saw a man dash from a closet to the door and escape down the street.

J. F. Jacoby, 125 East Pomona, Santa Ana, reported yesterday to city police that thieves stole the headlight rims and lenses from his car as it was parked on North Birch between Second and Third streets.

BOURBONS OF COUNTY HEAR DIGGS SPEAK

Young Democrats of Orange county met last evening at the Valencia ballroom in Anaheim to hear Marshall R. Diggs, assistant comptroller of the currency, who is in California as the personal representative of Vice President Garner, talk on the highlights of the past administration.

Mr. Diggs revealed through facts and figures the depressing condition of the country a few years ago and attempted to show changes made in a business way since the inauguration of President Roosevelt. He also went into the work of various officials in Washington, D. C., whose accomplishments are less publicized than they might be.

Introducing Mr. Diggs was Zack Cobb, nationally-known Democrat orator, who urged, as did all other speakers, a concentrated effort on the election of a Democratic congressman from the 19th district. A. P. Meyers, publicly director for the Young Democrats of California, also spoke.

James L. Davis, deputy district attorney, and whose name is being promoted for the congressional nomination for this district again this year, served as general chairman, having been asked by Stanley Clem, president of the county group, to take over the meeting. Horace Head was also a speaker. A representative group from the San Bernardino Young Democrats attended, one of which number addressed the group. Dancing followed.

SPECIAL GUESTS AT CHURCH ON SUNDAY

The First Congregational church will have "unexpected guests" at its service tomorrow morning, according to an announcement made today by the minister of the church, the Rev. Perry R. Schrock. The guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Charles Neff, from Guadalajara, Mexico. Mr. and Mrs. Neff, who are in California for a short vacation, are spending a few days in the cottage of friends at Balboa. When Mr. Schrock discovered their presence in this vicinity he prevailed upon them to attend the service and speak.

Mrs. Neff, who is a writer of charming stories, will tell a story to the children in place of the usual junior sermon. Both Mr. and Mrs. Neff will speak later in the service, telling of Mexico and their life there.

The famous Neff twins, Charles and John, who are well known to most congregational people, will be guests in the beginners department of the church school.

Tells Police She Was Thrown From Auto by "Friend"

Mrs. Madeline Shay, about 45, of the Leeper apartments, 1626 Pacific avenue, Long Beach, who was found wandering near the Orange county hospital late last night and who declared she had been thrown from an automobile in which she had been riding with a man, was treated at Orange county hospital and sent to her home. She told an officer that she had had "two or three drinks" during the evening, and at first believed she had lost $100 in postal bonds and $57 in cash, but at the hospital found $450 of the bonds and the cash intact. "I remember now that I left the other $129 in bonds at home," she added. Walking home in Long Beach, Mrs. Shay was invited to ride the remainder of the distance with a neighbor, she said, but he didn't drive her home.

QUESTION CONVICT ON CHECK CHARGES

Nells C. Jensen, alias George E. Vahl, of Santa Ana, who is now serving six months in Los Angeles county jail on a conviction of petty theft, was questioned yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Bob Steinberger and assertedly admitted he was the one who had passed several fictitious checks here and in Anaheim about May 9. On May 9, he told the officer, he cashed an $18.48 check with Herbert Melsinger, of Continental groceries, Center street, Anaheim. A hold order was placed on Jensen and he will be returned to Orange county after serving

EUGENE BOLTON DIES TODAY IN SAN FRANCISCO

Mrs. W. O. Hill, 1402 South Main street, was called to San Francisco today by a telegram announcing the sudden death this morning in Dante hospital, San Francisco, of her son-in-law, Eugene Bolton.

Mrs. "Gene" Bolton was Miss Blanche Hill, well known in this city where she attended school and was for several years employed in the court house. Her husband's death came very suddenly from pneumonia. He occupied a responsible position with the San Francisco offices of Standard Oil company.

He and Mrs. Bolton had been in his former home, Fresno, to spend the Mother's Day week-end with his parents, and left Sunday evening, May 16, for their home. They arrived to find a telegram telling them of the sudden death of the senior Mrs. Bolton within a short time after they had left for their homeward trip. The shock of this news was so great that "Gene Bolton was taken ill, and pneumonia developed a few days ago.

Mrs. Hill left this morning to be with her daughter and help in making funeral arrangements. It is probable that burial will be made in Fresno which has been the family home for many years.

—News Behind the News—

BY PAUL MALLON
(Copyright, 1936, by Paul Mallon)

PAPA
WASHINGTON, May 23.—President Roosevelt has been having family troubles again; not personal ones, of course, but official. It is no secret that he has the most motley collection of officials with high blood pressure ever assembled under a governmental roof.

Playing parent to a crowd of radicals, liberals, progressives, conservatives and reactionaries actually takes up more of his time than any other phase of the presidential business. The wonder of it is that he has been able to keep all but a few hundred of the inner squabbles from being fully aired in public.

For instance, he spent recently a portion of about 14 consecutive days straightening out a hot inside scrap over the reappointment of David Lillenthal to the Tennessee Valley Authority.

As a result, Mr. Lillenthal was appointed, considered and confirmed by the Senate in about 14 minutes, a process which usually requires at least three weeks.

In the case of his protegee, he had settled the matter with a minimum of publicity, but he still has his fingers crossed. He keeps them that way.

FIXING
To show you how these things work on the inside:

Mr. Lillenthal apparently meant nothing to Mr. Roosevelt, but Senator George Norris was the man backstage who was insisting on the reappointment. Lillenthal's term was to expire May 18. For three days prior thereto, Norris was a daily visitor at the White House.

Now, anything that Senator Norris wants from the New Deal is ordinarily granted without question, but in this case his protegee has been fighting constantly with another member of the TVA, Arthur Morgan. It was well understood by all concerned that if Lillenthal was reappointed, Morgan would probably resign.

To get around Morgan, a neat little arrangement was effected. Four days before Mr. Lillenthal was nominated, Norris engineered a secret meeting with the Senate Agriculture Committee. He induced the committee to approve the nomination and to authorize him to present a favorable report on it whenever it was made.

Thus, if you will look at the Congressional Record of Senate proceedings for May 18, you will find that the Lillenthal nomination was received from the White House in one paragraph, favorably reported from the Senate Agriculture Committee in the next paragraph and confirmed without discussion in the third.

It takes good fixing to do things like that.

SOOTHER
In this highly extraordinary manner, Mr. Lillenthal was put back in office for nine more years before any opposition had an opportunity to arise. But that settled only half the row. The other half was Mr. Morgan.

His daily visits to the White House began the day of the Senate coup and continued for three days thereafter.

What went on between the President and Mr. Morgan will probably forever remain a secret between them. There is no reason why Mr. Roosevelt should tell and Mr. Morgan is habitually speechless. As White House newsmen express it, Mr. Morgan "would not tell you whether today is Saturday."

However, the President felt sufficiently confident of himself as a soother of ruffled brows to announce before the third visit that the published thoughts about Mr. Morgan retiring were utter figments of reportorial imaginations.

In the above double dummy hand hearts are trumps. South leads and North and South are to win all tricks.

Down at the bridge clubs in Los Angeles everyone is "asking." And they are all asking one question—"Have you second round control?" and all you have to do is answer. It is really easier to learn the correct answers I have about decided than it is to learn which suit it is best to ask about. But if you consider and reconsider what answers you can get when you are asked to ask about the right suit, the new two-way asking bid, the grand slam force, the two new ways of using a "conventional" no-trump bid, and how to raise your partner's opening two bid to four. These new conventions are chiefly for those who already know the regulation bids which, of course, is the basis for the entire Culbertson system.

On June 7th, the Orange County Bridge association is having its annual team-of-four championship. Each year this event is held in Laguna Beach. There are no qualifying rounds, but each team-of-four plays a session in the afternoon and another in the evening. It is too bad we have to hold this affair on Sunday, but in order to accommodate those who work during the week days, it is about the only time we can arrange for a big turn-out. This year it will be especially interesting, because we expect the largest group we have ever had and we have four bronze trophies, one for each of the lucky team-of-four which will be appropriately engraved. The fee will be small and low enough for all who wish to play in this annual event. At present we have several players who have no partners, and several pairs who would like to team up with another pair, so do not hesitate to call if you would like to join us for a pleasant day of bridge.

This little joke is taken from this month's "Contract Bridge" by Young mother (bridge devotee): "Oh, honey, Junior learned how to count today and it's the cutest thing." Although he operates behind the scenes, W. B. Bell is the mystery man who is running the Republican National committee. He derives his power from the fact that he is chairman of the G. O. P. Finance committee and is digging up huts of dough.

Mr. Bell—president of the American Cyanamid Company since 1922—inspired and directed organization of the "brain trust" in the Barr Building. A hustling business man, he topped up the publicists whose blunders were embarrassing the party. He engaged Bruce Barton as press adviser, and the advertising man has assumed complete charge of all Republican publicity. No pamphlet or announcement can be issued without his okay.

Through Mr. Bell the G. O. P. is also benefiting from the political brains and inside information of Lewis H. Douglas, who quit as Budget Director out of disgust with FDR's monetary policies. Mr. Douglas immediately became vice president of the cyanamid corporation, and has frequently been mentioned as a vice presidential prospect if the Republicans frame a coalition ticket—which they won't.

HISTORY
Bell has never before participated in politics, but his concern had a brush with a senatorial lobby committee six years ago. He was accused of helping to finance a dummy corporation in an attempt to obtain a lease on Muscle Shoals from the Hoover administration.

Claudius H. Huston was then chairman of the Republican National Committee. He was also president of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, which was interested in development of streams that now furnish power for TVA. Testimony before the Caraway Lobby Committee brought out that interests associated with the American Cyanamid company paid $25,000 to Mr. Huston. Though the chairman said the money was for map making, the committee thought otherwise.

The affair caused a political sensation. Mr. Huston was discredited as having used the money in the stock market, though he subsequently repaid it to the improvement association. But the revelations eventually led to his resignation and did Herbert Hoover's administration no good.

SET
President Roosevelt has recently made several seemingly unrelated moves of great significance when pieced together. They indicate that private power magnates are second among his personal public enemies—bankers first—and that he will shape his plans accordingly if re-elected.

When House and Senate conferees deadlocked over the provision permitting private companies to borrow government money for rural electrification, the President sided with Senator Norris against extending the privilege. Not even Rural Electrifier Morris Cooke, who favored the friendly gesture, they see eye to eye.

Then Mr. Roosevelt reappointed David Lillenthal as a TVA director even in the face of Chairman Morgan's threat to resign in protest. The President dreaded a break in the TVA ranks but he stood by Lillenthal. The latter is a protégé of Senators Norris and La Follette, and a former member of the Wisconsin Public Service Commission. His advanced ideas on government operation of power plants apparently endears him to FDR. This is one New Deal front on which there'll be no retreat.

Down at the bridge clubs in Los Angeles everyone is "asking." And they are all asking one question—"Have you second round control?" and all you have to do is answer. It is really easier to learn the correct answers I have about decided than it is to learn which suit it is best to ask about. But if you consider and reconsider what answers you can get when you are asked to ask about the right suit, the new two-way asking bid, the grand slam force, the two new ways of using a "conventional" no-trump bid, and how to raise your partner's opening two bid to four. These new conventions are chiefly for those who already know the regulation bids which, of course, is the basis for the entire Culbertson system.

On June 7th, the Orange County Bridge association is having its annual team-of-four championship. Each year this event is held in Laguna Beach. There are no qualifying rounds, but each team-of-four plays a session in the afternoon and another in the evening. It is too bad we have to hold this affair on Sunday, but in order to accommodate those who work during the week days, it is about the only time we can arrange for a big turn-out. This year it will be especially interesting, because we expect the largest group we have ever had and we have four bronze trophies, one for each of the lucky team-of-four which will be appropriately engraved. The fee will be small and low enough for all who wish to play in this annual event. NOTED SINGERS TO APPEAR ON MEMORY HOUR

The Musical Memory Hour at Melrose Abbey, Sunday afternoon, May 24, will feature Miss Dorothy Plintham, soprano; Miss Charlotte Hollister, organist; and Maurice C. Phillips, baritone.

Miss Plintham graduated from the Orange Union High school where she received four years' training under the direction of Miss Phyllis Lucy Keyes. She is now a scholarship student at the University of Southern California and is continuing her voice culture under the direction of Horatio Cozswell, well-known head of the university voice department. This program will afford the many friends of Miss Plintham an opportunity to hear her on this exceptional program. The numbers chosen for this occasion are: "On Divine Redeemer" (Gounod); "Angels Serenade" (Braga); and "Ave Maria" (Bach-Gounod).

Maurice Phillips, popular baritone of Santa Ana, is always heard with a great deal of pleasure by his host of admirers and needs no further introduction to the music lovers of Orange county. He will sing the old favorites: "The Builder" (Cadmans); "Evening and Morning" (Oley Spinks); and "Ave Maria" (For Thy Light Is Come) (McDermid).

Miss Charlotte Hollister, organist, is also another of the popular young musicians of Orange, and is a graduate of the music department of the University of Redlands where she was a pupil of Arthur Polster, widely known as a composer and teacher of the pipe organ. Miss Hollister has chosen the following numbers which will give her ample opportunity to demonstrate her exceptional ability on the organ: "Eclogue" (Rogers); "Whispering Spring" (Clokey); and "The Bells of St. Anne de Beaupre" (Alexander Russell).

The public is invited to all Musical Memory Hour programs which are held in the beautiful chapel of Melrose Abbey at 3 o'clock every Sunday afternoon.

Opened this afternoon with registration in this city, the fourteenth annual convention of Federated Luther League of the California district, American Lutheran churches, was expected to draw additional delegates for sessions tonight and tomorrow in Santa Ana and Anaheim.

St. Peter's Lutheran church of this city and Grace Lutheran church of Anaheim are headquarters for the convention. Anaheim, Compton, Pomona, Santa Ana, Torrance, Visalia, San Diego, Los Angeles, Long Beach, Inglewood and Pasadena churches are represented at the conference.

Picnic supper tonight at 5 o'clock will be served in Jack Fisher park under auspices of Anaheim and Santa Ana leagues. Campfire songs, stunts and games will be on the informal program.

Breakfast Sunday morning at 8:30 o'clock will be served in both the Santa Ana and Anaheim churches, with Sunday school services following. Eleven o'clock will bring combined outdoor churches of Anaheim and Santa Ana congregations together with the convention delegates and leaders in Anaheim park Greek theater. Picnic luncheon at noon will be served in the park by women of the Anaheim and Santa Ana congregations.

The Rev. Carl Doermann, returned missionary from India, will be speaker at the Sunday afternoon session scheduled for 2:30 o'clock in Santa Ana Willard auditorium. Election of officers will take place at 4:15 p. m., when the federated president, Eugene A. Hoffmann of Mt. Calvary church, Los Angeles, will preside.

Fellowship banquet at 5:30 p. m. will be held in Anaheim high school cafeteria. The closing service, at 7:30 p. m. in Grace Lutheran church, Anaheim, will feature an address by the Rev. Ray Kibler of San Diego. Installation of new league officers will climax the service.

FEAR LOPEZ-CHRISTY ROW OVER REFEREE

Because of the pressing business of the state athletic commission which convened at Los Angeles yesterday, Promoter Sam Sampson was unable to get the commission to name a referee for Monday night's world heavyweight championship wrestling match at the Orange County Athletic club between Champion Vincent Lopez and Challenger Vic Christy.

It is understood, however, unless Lopez demand to have Don McDonald handle the bout, either Dick Rutherford, former all-American football star from Nebraska, or "Bull" Montana, former grappler and motion picture star, will be named by Chief Inspector Jack Kipper.

Monday's program marks the first "independent" program signed by Promoter Sampson. Late yesterday Sampson added "Whatman" McCarthy and Bill McCormack, former jockey and star from Talbert, to appear in an added 10-minute time limit opener.

Tickets will be sold all day tomorrow at the arena, Sampson said today. The complete card features George (General) Kondratyev vs. Bill Sledge, Baron Bonny Glinsburg vs. Bill Hansen and Baby Bob Coleman vs. Mitsu Hamanaka.

Maxie's manager, Anell Hoffman, said the offer proposed a guarantee of $50,000 for his boxer. Hoffman put the offer with one from Walter Neusel in Amsterdam.

Hoffman said the notes made it look like Max was due for an European tour.

The former champion now is conducting an orchestra. He is 25 pounds over fighting weight.

Boyd Surprises On Track

TINY DON RUNS FAST HURDLERS. WYKOFF LOSES

Chances for Santa Ana junior college having a representative on the Olympic squad this summer were promising today following Frank Boyd's placing second in the 400-meter low hurdles at Compton last night.

Trailing the winner, Estel Johnson, U. S. C.'s smooth-striding quarter-miler, to the tape by two yards, the Kansas kid boomed his chances for a trip to Berlin by beating Trojan Leland LaFond and other talented runners of the Southland. Unseeded and overlooked in pre-meet calculations, Boyd ran his race in about 54 seconds. As this was the second time he had ever attempted a 400-meter flight of lows, it is not out of the way to predict that the little Don quarter-miler should be able to clip a second or more off his time.

Other Santa Ana Jaycee entrants—Norman Paul, Bill Greencher, Al Parr, Joe Frise, and Jimmy Noe failed to qualify. Erwin Miller, Fullerton's barrel-chested 440 star, was scratched from the 400-meter dash by Coach Harold Lang who wanted to save his ace for the relay.

"SLINGER" DUNN SMASHES DISCUS RECORD

COMPTON, May 23.—(UP)—Gordon (Slinger) Dunn, former Stanford weightman, last night set a new American record when he threw the discus 171 feet, 5 1/2 inches during Compton's invitational track and field carnival here.

The throw moved the American record to two feet beyond the mark of 169 feet, 8 1/2 inches made by Paul Jessup of Washington.

Dunn, competing under the banner of the Olympic club of San Francisco, made the record-breaking throw on his second attempt. His mark was six inches short of the world's record held by Harold Anderson of Sweden.

LeRoy Kirkpatrick, San Mateo junior college youngster, set the best mark of the season on the Pacific coast when he won the 110-meter high hurdle race in 14.3 seconds, defeating two University of Southern California hurdlers, Phil Cope and Roy Staley.

Comeback attempts by two veteran performers failed to materialize when Frank Wykoff ran third to Foy Draper of Southern California in the 100 meters and Bill Graber failed to place in the pole vault which was won by Jack Rand of San Diego at 14 feet.

Cornelius Johnson, Compton Negro, registered his sixth straight victory over Walter Marty of Fresno when he jumped six feet, five inches, far below marks both have set this year. Marty finished in a three-way tie with Huffine of Compton and Thurlow of Southern California at six feet, four inches.

Norman Bright of the Olympic club, the coast's leading distance runner, won by less than a yard from Louis Zamperini, Southern California athlete, in the 5000-meter run. Zamperini appeared on the verge of winning the race when his stride broke in the last 10 yards.

Coach Bill Cook has submitted for approval before the Santa Ana junior college student board of control, 22 letters for the 1936-37 track and field season.

Twenty track men and two managers will receive letters. They include Major Anderson, Wilburn Anderson, Frank Boyd, David Clark, Robert Clark, Art Craft, Joe Frise, Ines Granados, Cameron Gills, William Greencher, George Griffith, Vernon Koepsel, Willard Luton, Tom Matzen, James Noe, Frank Ochoa, Al Parr, Robert Reif, George Snokelberg, Bob Spray and Managers Duncan Clark and Franklin Guthrie.

NEW AND OLD IN WRESTLING

In this touching little snapshot, Ed ("Strangler") Lewis, greatest wrestler of his day, is showing his protégé, Vincent Lopez, the world's championship belt. Lopez, recognized in California as the titleholder, is due here Monday night to wrestle Vic Christy.

There was more than dye in Joe Rodgers' red bandana at Huntington Beach last night. The Oilers' manager sweat blood before his ball club finally outlived Olive, 2-1, in the last of the eleven innings.

Rodgers' doubles began in the morning when he loaned his second string pitcher, Russ Cogan, to Westminster. Came evening, and eventually 8:15, but at game-time neither Louie Neva nor his catcher-brother, Paul, were in the ball park. Rodgers went into the bleachers to sign one player and was preparing to field a team of eight men when Brothers Neva arrived in the nick of time—just like Frank and Dick Merrill.

Amid wild cheering, Louie went to the box without a "warm-up" and held Olive to three hits in an overtime contest. Olive's lone run came in the second when Joe Wallin ran clear to third base on Smith's error at first and tallied on Hahne's hit.

Huntington Beach tied it in its half on Schuchard's single, Osborn's walk, and two passed balls. The count remained 1-1 until the eleventh when Rodgers singled infield and took second on a low throw to first, and scored when Smith's pop fly dropped back of first base for a double.

SCHMELING IS SHARPSHOOTER

He Could Use a Gun Against Joe Louis Next Month!

DAVIS CUP TROUBLE EXPECTED

BY HENRY M'LEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, May 23.—Putting-able finishers list for the U. S. the sport shot here and there:

Max Schmeling is an expert sharpshooter . . . Says the sport sharpens an athlete's eye. . . Be he swimmer, jumper or fencer. . . Too bad Max can't take his gun into the ring with Louis. . . Looks like a big year for British golf. . . The gals kept their title at home this week. . . The men's amateur, beginning next week, is a cinch to stay in England after two trips to America in company of Lawson Little. . . The open has stayed in England for the last two years and the betting is even it remains a third. . . Only dark spot for the Britons is the Walker Cup, which is certain to remain America's property after the amateur team duel in September. . . American Davis cuppers face disaster in their own back yard next week against Australia. . . Uncle Sam's men haven't missed a trip to Europe since they lost the cup in 1927. . . And they went to the challenge round every time but twice since then. . . Big Davis Cup controversy is whether little "Betsy" Grant is going to play singles instead of Wilmer Allison. . . Expect fireworks if the Atlanta midget doesn't get the bid. . . Cornell is the east's hope to stave off the western horde at Poughkeepsie. . . And Penn still looks like a good bet for the Olympics. . . Henry Picard and Gene Sarazen are feuding mildly. . . Picard is peeved because Gene left him off his first ten prob-open. . . Promoter Mike Jacobs keeps a monkey in his back yard. . . Seems a sports writer and a drunk sailor got together one night and bought the monk. . . Then the sailor tried to give it to the bride of one of his pals. . . She would have no part of it. . . So Jacobs rescued the monk, gave it a home and named it after the writer. . . The Boston Red Sox have more reporters traveling with them this season than at any time in history. . . Branch Rickey adopts a Judge Landis pose when he watches the ball-game from a box. . . Drapes his head over the rail and even sports a grey slouch hat. . . Stu Martin, Card second baser, played every position but catcher and pitcher when he was with Asheville last year. . . Bobby Wilson, 13, son of the Phil Manager Jimmy, doesn't want to be a catcher like pop. . . "Aw, that's too much like work," he said when reporters found him working out in the Phil infield one afternoon. . . Good long shot bet for the U. S. open: Denney Shute. . . John Martin, managing editor of news-magazine Time, consistently breaks 30 on the golf course, making him probably the best one-armed golfer in the country. . . He's also an expert fly-fisherman. . . Lonnie Warneke, Cub hurler, was scared lost he included in that recent deal. . . When told that a trade was made, Lon asked a reporter "was I in? No? Gosh, that's a relief."

Brubaker, Near Defeat, Gets Draw By Rally

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—(UP)—Phil Brubaker had a rugged, three-round fist-throwing rally to take today for a 10-round draw with Andre Lenglet, heavyweight champion of France, which kept him in the running for big-time professional honors.

Rated 2 to 1 favorite in pre-bout betting, Brubaker, taken aback by the clever aggressiveness of the visiting boxer, absorbed six rounds of hard punishment before he finally was able to gain points.

While a large crowd maintained a constant uproar with the wide shifting of the tide of battle, Lenglet baffled Brubaker with cross rights and lefts which the "Fighting Parson" seemingly was unable to defend against.

The Frenchman knocked the Dinuban down for a count of seven in the third round. He closed Brubaker's right eye and continued to pepper it with short, hard jabs which opened other gashes and "wooded" his nose.

Lenglet bored in consistently in the fourth, fifth and sixth rounds, apparently feeling he was on the verge of winning by a knock-out. Brubaker stayed on the defense, covering up as his opponent "smothered" him with greater "smother" and height.

In the seventh, Brubaker snapped into action. While blood streaked down his face, he took the offensive, solved Lenglet's attack, and scored repeatedly with hard right uppercuts and left crosses. It was Lenglet's turn to go on the defense as Brubaker fought desperately to make up lost ground in the space of the last three rounds.

Referee Joe Gorman announced the draw decision as the crowd roared approval.

ANAHEIM IN THIRD PLACE

"Eeny" Wilcox's Anaheim Valencia stole into third place today after defeating Westminster, 7-5, at Anaheim.

Doubles by Edmunson and Higgins gave Anaheim to a running start in the second, but Westminster took a 2-1 lead in the third when Jim McNabb hit a home run after Harnols had singled.

The Avengers' advantage was short-lived, however, as Anaheim rang the bell four times on Pitcher Russ Cogan in its half. Arroues' triple with the bases loaded and Higgins' single did the damage.

Westminster tied it in the fifth when Floyd Montgomery doubled three runs across. "String" McDonnell replaced Stinchfield as the Valencia pitcher after Montgomery's blow, held the Avengers runless the rest of the way out.

Claim U. S. F. Is Paying Star Athletes

LOS ANGELES, May 23.—University of San Francisco is paying room and board and purchasing textbooks for star football players, according to Jack Horner, student body president-elect of the Catholic institution.

Speaking at a session of the Pacific Coast student body presidents association, Horner asked that all colleges furnish athletes with "expense money in addition to tuition."

"These athletes work for the money and they are entitled to it," Horner said.

Horner explained his university had no dormitories and as a result paid room and board for football players whose homes were outside of the San Francisco area. He said the university also bought textbooks for all players who were unable to afford them.

"About a dozen players are being aided in this way now," he said. "This has been going on as long as I can remember."

Following the reception the young couple left for a honeymoon trip of several days, the bride first changing to an ensemble in navy blue worn with white accessories. Upon their return they will be at home at 205 West Imperial Highway.

The GLAMOROUS ADVENTURE

by Jean Seiwright © 1936 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
GAIL EVERETT, winner of the John S. Lorne costume design prize, comes to New York to find work. Gail's parents are both dead. She has spent the past three years at MISS CHANTON'S fashionable school for girls—due to Miss Cranston's generosity and friendship for Gail's mother.

Arrived with a letter from Lorne, Gail goes to his office and is told he is out of town. DEREK HARGREAVES, an artist, overhears this conversation and offers to help Gail. He advises her to go to MADAME LIZETTE'S shop to apply for a job.

Gail arrives there just after tea. Madame Lizeite has learned her designer has gone to Hollywood. Gail gets the job and is told to report for work next morning.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER IV
The subdued tinkle of the telephone on her bedside table awoke Gail next morning. Still half asleep, she reached for the receiver, and heard a crisp young voice announce, "It's 7 o'clock!"

"Thanks," answered Gail, mechanically placing the receiver in its cradle again. She'd quite forgotten she had left word at the desk to be called.

The sun was shining brightly, and already the unfamiliar noises of the city were drifting into her room. There was the screech of the elevated as its serpentine train swung around a curve, the throbbing of innumerable motors as a never-ending stream of cars swept along the street. Hundreds of men and women were already on their way to work.

Gail breakfasted alone, for she was not yet acquainted with any of the young business women who comprised the population of the tall clubhouse. At the tables around her little groups of girls were coming and going, pausing here and there to call a greeting to new arrivals or wave gaily to others in more secluded corners of the large dining room. Gail felt thrilled. The atmosphere was so buoyant. Surely romance and adventure were in the very air.

She rose from the table but as she neared the door she came face to face with a girl whose vivid gray eyes and dusky hair immediately set her apart from all the others. She gave Gail no friendly good-morning, but a cool stare which undoubtedly she would have resented from a less intriguing character.

"Wonder who Natalie's gunning for this morning?" sniggered a rather petite blond to the girl beside her who carelessly tossed her shoulders as the gray-eyed girl passed.

But had Gail not been in such a hurry to leave she might have jeered the blond girl's exclaim, as her eyes still followed Natalie. "She's looking us over again to see if there's any newcomer worth getting acquainted with."

GAIL sniffed the air as she stepped into the street. Although there was no fragrance of flowers around her, and she missed the sweetness of growing things, it felt fresh. She walked quickly, amazed to see so many people on the streets so early in the day. Then, catching sight of a mail box, she crossed the street and dropped a letter into it. She noted the time of collection before she hurried on, her lips parted in a smile. Had Derek Hargreaves really wanted to know the result of her search for work, or was it only politeness that had prompted him to ask her to let him know how she had made out? Gail was still smiling as she stepped down to the basement court where the employees' entrance to Madame Lizeite's shop was located. Something seemed to tell her she would see Derek again.

Gail dropped the letter into the mail box, noting the time of collection before she hurried on.

"This is the wrong entrance you'll be coming to here, young lady," exclaimed Pat Murphy, the porter. "Sure, it's only the employees that do be going in at this door."

"Well, I'm one of them," Gail answered gaily.

"Begorra, then, 'tis my mistake, though it's a lady you be!" and he flung the door open for her.

Down the dark passage Gail followed the other workers into a small dressing room which was crowded with lockers. She looked around. It was bedlam in the closely packed room where girls were changing their shoes, combing their hair, adding another touch of lipstick, and calling back and forth to each other, until suddenly, some one said, "Shush!" as Miss Caroline entered.

"Miss Everett," Clytie called, "here's the key for your locker. Use 57," she added as Gail appeared.

"Thank you," Gail answered; but when she tried to open the door, she could not move it. "Here, sister, let me show you the trick," exclaimed Clytie, the model Gail had seen the day before. With a crooked smile in her languorous eyes, Clytie took the key and continued, "It's a simple matter, you know. Takes after Madame."

THERE was a loud guffaw in the room. Then, having opened frock. Nearer the door was a handsome Italian with a beautifully curled mustache, pressing a fine white woolen coat.

"You'll find paints and paper here," Miss Caroline pointed to a small chest of drawers. "I guess there are plenty of supplies, but if you need anything make a list and hand it to me. Frank does your pressing and Selma and Toineette will help you. Madame said she wanted you to make some water color sketches before you start to work in the materials. You've had some experience in the practical side of designing, haven't you?"

"Oh, yes," answered Gail bravely, though she stifled a sigh as she thought how different her surroundings were now.

"All right," Miss Caroline exclaimed, leaving the room. FOR a moment Gail felt a desperate desire to follow her. Then, turning to the chest in front on her, she found the paper, paint and brushes she needed. Soon she was absorbed in her work. A buzzer sounded, and Ariadne, who had been in the showroom most of the morning, sauntered over to Gail. "It's 12 o'clock. Time to go to lunch."

"My, but the morning's gone fast," cried Gail, sitting up and looking about her. "I guess I'd better finish this before I go out. Madame may wish to see it."

"Better go when the going's good," advised Ariadne, and she slouched from the room.

A moment later the door opened, and Clytie called, "Didn't you hear the buzzer, Miss Everett? It's time to go to lunch. I don't go till one, for someone has to be in the showroom, but our designer always goes at this time."

"Then I guess I'll go," said Gail, rising and cleaning her brush while she studied her painting through half-closed eyes. "Say, that's gorgeous! I bet Madame will like that. Oh, well, if she doesn't—and when she's worried about Rex (that's her son) she often acts crazy—just never mind her. She gets out of it, especially if some of her pet customers are pleased with the sketches she shows them."

So Madame had a son, thought Gail, as she quickly got ready to go out. Clytie's warning words were still ringing in her ears when she reached the street. "Don't be late, Miss Everett, if you'd take a tip from a model."

Gail glanced at her wrist watch. It was 20 minutes past 12. She'd have to hurry through her lunch. Directly across the street she saw a smart-looking tearoom. Maybe she'd better go there. Still, service was often rather slow in these places. Clytie had remembered passing a drug store on her way to work that morning. The drug-store was at the corner, so she hurried toward it. A cup of coffee and a sandwich would have to take the place of anything more substantial today. She dare not risk running Madame's wrath the first day!

But fate often smiles at mortals' resolutions! As Gail left the drugstore, a luxurious car pulled to the curb and a young man with the figure of an athlete stepped out.

HOLLYWOOD, May 23.—Mutterings: Wouldn't it be fun to introduce Grace Moore to Jeanette MacDonald, then ask: "Which of you ladies sing the better?" Girl who always looks as if she just stepped out of a bath: Jean Parker. Silly notion: To challenge Joe E. Brown to a pie-eating contest. Imaginable hilarious evening: Overhearing Professor Einstein expound his theories to Stan Laurel. Do you suppose the 75 women who have mailed leap year proposals to Dick Powell really mean it?

Ambitions: To pinch Constance Bennett and discover if she would yell "Ouch!" or light a Murad. Doubles in personality: Gene Raymond and Edmund Lowe. Lionel Barrymore's eyes, when he glares in my direction, make me think of hypnosis. Nervous itch: To explode bombs under movie critics who decry coincidence in pictures, when coincidence is one of life's most dramatic ingredients. Wondering Muse: About time some producer set out to bait the movie censors. Diabolic thought: To whisper in Lupe Velez's ear: "Your Johnnie likes blondes." Then run like a jackrabbit for the nearest cyclone cellar.

There are several unimportant local magazines which subsist principally by selling "stories" to screen unknowns. Rates for space vary from twenty-five to one hundred dollars a page, price of photographs to be paid by the "advertiser." Publishers of these cheap periodicals prey on three groups of local citizens: (1) Unseasoned newcomers who think such write-ups may attract the attention of studio executives; (2) Unsuccessful strikers who buy these stories to send them "back home" to impress and fool family and friends; and (3) blackmail victims.

Group No. 1 may as well throw its money into the Pacific ocean, or bet on race track long shots. Executives never see these fly-by-night publications, and even if one reaches an official desk, it is swept quickly into the waste basket. Group No. 2—well (shudder at my shoulders) I guess the clippings do impress folks back home. There was one girl in Hollywood whose family provided an income while she essayed a screen career; the agreement was that she might slack as long as she showed progress. She fooled the folks for nearly two years with paid-for write-ups in local magazines. Group No. 3 pays well for space. Publishers of

By MISS BEULAH MAY

This lovely poem is by Robert Tristram Coffin the winner of this year's Pulitzer poetry prize.

SOMETHING HOLY
It meant something holy years ago
When I saw a lamp shine on the snow
From a farmhouse window, though the light
Of the sunset had not slipped from sight.
One star looked more like a drop of dew
Than any star, since the "hey was not quite through.
Sounds were getting lonelier
and shriller
A string of sleigh bells hung along a hill.
People were in houses and the cows
Were shut in the summer of their mows.
The west grew dark. A door was opened, words
Came out sudden like a flock of birds.

COMEDIES OPEN TOMORROW AT WALKER STATE

A pair of outstanding screen comedies are offered as the attraction at Walker's State theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. They are "The Bride Comes Home," starring Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray, and "Miss Pacific Fleet," with that famous quartet of screen comedians, Joan Blondell, Glenda Farrell, Hugh Herbert and Allen Jenkins.

"The Bride Comes Home" concerns the romance of a spirited girl whose father has gone broke, and a rough and ready young fellow who has just been made editor of a magazine by a rich young playboy, Robert Young. They find they can't spend five minutes together without fighting, yet they can't stay away from each other. The girl's father saves a seemingly hopeless situation when he points out how happy he was with her mother, though they, too, had many lively scraps.

Miss Blondell and Miss Farrell are cast in their picture as a couple of wise-cracking chorus beauties who run a concession at an amusement park on the Pacific coast liberally patronized by sailors, until Jenkins skill at ringing canes. Then they try to win a beauty contest staged by Hugh Herbert to get cash to get back to New York. The climax includes a kidnapping, a motorboat chase after the abducted girl and a free-for-all battle in which host of sailors and their sweeties take part.

'SPEED BOOKED' FOR BROADWAY THEATER ON MEMORIAL DAY

A fast moving program for the Memorial Day holidays has been booked by Manager Lester J. Fountain for the Broadway theater beginning Thursday, May 28, and ending Saturday night, May 31.

Saturday the Indianapolis "Speed" races will be one of the big attractions of the day, but those who can't attend the Indianapolis classic may see some real speeding in "Speed," the super attraction of a double bill. "Speed" Co-stars James Stewart, Una Merkel and Weldon Heyburn.

In the hope of shattering a world's speed record for motion picture scenes, automotive technicians in Hollywood built a racing car that may revolutionize the design of high-speed automobiles. The racer christened the "Falcon" is 26 feet and 2 inches in length, is powered with a 675-horsepower Curtis-Conquest motor and has attained a speed of 140 miles per hour in trial runs.

"Speed" is a drama based upon the daring of the unsung gods of speed—the automobile test pilots. Though built especially for the film, "Speed" the racer "Falcon" will be taken to the Utah Salt beds some time this summer and an effort will be made to break the world's speed record set by Sir Malcolm Campbell.

"One Rainy Afternoon" is the second half of the holiday double bill and stars Francis Lederer, Ida Lupino and Hugh Herbert. Lederer in "One Rainy Afternoon" has his first singing film role. Others cast first singing film roles are Joseph Cawthorn and Mischa Auer. A color cartoon, "I Have to Take Orders From You," and a Fox news reel complete one of the best programs that has been shown here in many weeks, according to Mr. Fountain.

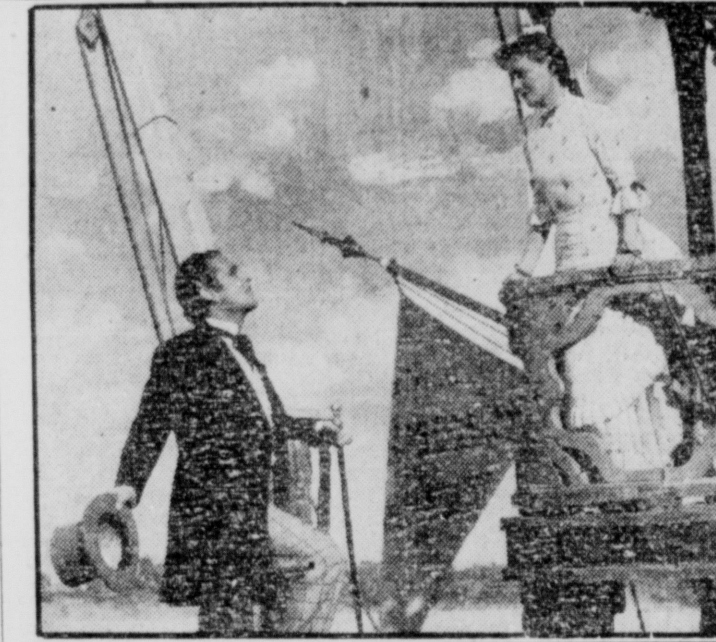

SHOW SUNDAY AT BROADWAY

Joe E. Brown and Joan Blondell, two of the most popular comedians on the screen are shown below in a scene from "Sons O' Guns" is one of the finest pieces of work Joe has ever turned out.

SCENE FROM SHOW BOAT

The 1936 version of Edna Ferber's "Show Boat" now showing at the West Coast theater stars Allan Jones and Irene Dunne, shown below. "Show Boat" which opened last Thursday will continue its run here until Wednesday night.

STARS IN STATE FILM

Here is a romantic portrait sketch of Claudette Colbert, star of "The Bride Comes Home" which will be screened at Walker's State theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

HENRY FONDA AND MISS SULLAVAN AT WEST COAST MAY 28

Manager Lester Fountain is still congratulating himself on his booking of "The Moon's Our Home," for the Fox West Coast theater for a five day run beginning next Thursday, May 28.

"The Moon's Our Home" stars Margaret Sullivan and Henry Fonda, two of the most popular stars on the screen today.

Directed by William A. Seiter from a Faith Baldwin story, "The Moon's Our Home" deals with two international celebrities who have learned to hate each other, merely on the strength of their reputations.

As a fiery tempered, pampered, though beautiful screen star, Miss Sullivan refers to a noted world explorer-author over whom millions of women have gone mad, as the "kind of person who would be lost without his hot water bottle." Henry Fonda, as the globe-trotter, refers to the screen star as a "phony blonde with a face that resembled French pastry."

They eventually meet under assumed names, and, without knowing each other's real identity, fall in love. They are married, but almost immediately, their temperaments clash. The bride leaves the bridegroom flat. Relenting, they make a frantic search for each other and the amusing situations which arise from the search, and the manner in which the scrappy pair become reconciled, make "The Moon's Our Home" lively screen entertainment.

Others supporting Miss Sullivan are Henrietta Crossman, Beulah Bondi, Lucien Littlefield and Dorothy Stickney.

"The Mine With the Iron Door," Harold Bell Wright's famous story featuring Richard Arlen, Cecilia Parker and Henry B. Walthall is the other half of an unusual double bill.

"BOULDER DAM" TO SHOW AT BROADWAY

"Boulder Dam," a Warner Bros. production, heralded as a drama of thrilling action, heroic deeds and glamorous romance, has been booked as the feature attraction at the Fox Broadway theater for Sunday, May 31, for a four day run by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

The picture is based on Don M. Temple's story of the building of this mighty project and the lives of the dare-devil workmen who blasted their way through solid rock and scaled the walls hundreds of feet above the river, is painted in the picture in colorful detail.

A second feature, "Trouble For Two" and a comic and news reel completes the program.

The program will close on Wednesday night, June 3.

'HARVESTER' BOOKED FOR WEST COAST

"Bullets and Ballots" and "The Harvester" will be the double bill attraction at the West Coast theater beginning Tuesday, June 2, according to an announcement made today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

An excellent balance of romantic drama and down-to-earth wholesome humor lifts "The Harvester" from the ranks of just ordinary to that of feature attraction.

The Gene Stratton Porter picture has been acclaimed by critics over the country as one of the finest films of the year and has been given the stamp of approval by the various church and school organizations who ever are on the lookout for pictures that will appeal to the young and old alike.

WAX HORRORS IN FILM LONDON, (UP)—Madam Tussaud, who founded the famous waxworks more than 150 years ago, is to be the subject of a motion picture made in England with a French director, Jean de Marguenat. The Tussaud "chamber of horrors" will play an important part in the picture.

JOE BROWN AND SHOW BOAT AT JOAN BLONDELL WEST COAST IS COMING SUNDAY POPULAR FILM

"Sons o' Guns," Joe E. Brown's latest Warner Bros. comedy frolic, based on the hilarious musical hit by Fred Thompson and Jack Donaghy will open at the Fox Broadway theater tomorrow, according to Manager Lester Fountain. It will run four days, closing with Wednesday night's showing.

Besides the mirth stirring antics of the wide-mouthed comedian, the picture is spiced with famous martial airs of the original stage play, with tuneful new songs by Harry Warren and Al Dubin, sung by Joe himself, Joan Blondell, Winifred Shaw and the Chambers male chorus, and riotous dance numbers, all staged by the famous musical comedy producer, Bobby Connolly.

The story is a rollicking comedy romance dealing with the humorous side of doughboy life in France during the World War. The picture is said to be the most colorful and picturesque, and lavishly in production values, staged with more elaborateness than any previous Joe E. Brown comedy.

Between his distate for army discipline and enemy shells on the one hand and his timorous adventures with three jealous and aggressive sweethearts on the other, Joe finds that life is just one horrible nightmare after another, much to the amusement, it is said, of the spectator.

In addition to "Sons o' Guns" the second feature "Absolute Quiet" starring Stuart Erwin and Ann Loring is said to be one of the finest pictures released this season. A color cartoon, "Cobweb Hotel" and Fox news reel completes the program.

"Show Boat" with Irene Dunne, and Allen Jones, which opened at the Fox West Coast theater last Thursday is proving to be one of the most popular pictures of the year, according to Manager Lester Fountain.

"Show Boat" was booked by Manager Fountain for a solid week's showing at the West Coast and from indications will continue to "pack 'em in" during the next four days.

"And So They Were Married," the second half of the double bill is one of those rollicking light pictures that leaves a satisfactory feeling of having had a good time. It features Mary Astor and Melvyn Douglas. In addition to the two features the program includes "By the Old Mill Stream," a color cartoon and a news reel.

Adept and fancy swapping was generally deemed to have become a lost art with the passing of the horse as a keynote of barter. However, Irene Dunne, star of Universal's Show Boat, has proved herself an expert "swapper-inner." She could go into business any time as the Better Barter Bureau, Inc.

It was her ability to swap that brought her into the role of Ravelin in "Show Boat." But in the role of "Magnolia" Miss Dunne exceeds anything she has done in the past. The heavenly voice of Allan Jones singing in the role of "Ravenel" and the inimitable Charles Winninger as the hilarious and beloved "Capt. Andy" are added to Paul Robeson's glorious rendition of famous and new songs by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II to make "Show Boat" one of the outstanding pictures of the year. Others in the cast are Helen Morgan, Helen Westley, Queenie Smith and Sammy White.

ADVENTURE PICTURE ENDS RUN AT STATE COMEDY-DRAMA AND ROMANCE BOOKED AT WALKER'S STATE

One of Peter B. Kyne's thrilling adventure stories is the highlight of the entertainment program to be shown at Walker's State theater for the last time tonight. It is "The Mysterious Avenger," a tale of the Texas Rangers, starring Charles Starrett, with Joan Perry as the lovely leading lady.

The program also includes a Popeye cartoon, "Spinach Overturn," a Leon Errol comedy, "Home Work," a news reel, and a chapter of "The Miracle Rider" with Tom Mix.

The first presents Margaret Lindsay, Warren Hull, Anita Louise and Ruth Donnelly in the leading roles and concerns the efforts of a struggling New York family to get ahead.

The other feature is set in a luxurious big hotel and presents the escapades of a pair of light-hearted young folk, Francis Lederer and Frances Dee, both in assumed roles.

Pythons generally are sold to zoos by the foot. A 25-foot python sells for about $40 a foot.

To relieve the tenseness of the seriousness of the plane activities, "Absolute Quiet," featuring Margaret Lindsay, Glenda Farrell and Warren Hull, is the second feature on the bill. A "March of Time" film and a Fox News reel add to the completeness of the program.

El Club Juvenil Plans
First Anniversary
Formal Dance

Completion by El Club Juvenil of a year whose success has justified all the hopes of the founders, will be celebrated by this social group of prominent young Mexicans of Santa Ana and vicinity with a formal anniversary dance to be held Sunday night at 8:30 o'clock in Gonzales hall.

Cabinet officers of the club are planning this springtime event, for which an excellent orchestra has been secured. Invitations have been issued among well known Mexican families of the entire community, and a number of guests are expected from Los Angeles, including members of several similar clubs in that city. Among guests of honor will be Pablo and Paquita, famous dance team whose appearances in leading theaters of the United States and Europe have been attended with great success, and Alfredo Palacios, popular Mexican soloist who has been singing at the Palmeras cafe, Los Angeles.

Founders of the club, who have served as officers this year, are Ezequiel Chavez, president; Gilbert Gonzales, secretary; John Ramirez, treasurer; and the Misses Josefa Villalobos, social chairman, and Cecilia Ramirez, decorations chairman. Their purpose in forming the organization was to stimulate and advance social activities among Mexican young people of Orange county, and provide carefully chaperoned parties and dances that would further friendships and provide a series of pleasant affairs.

Sunday night's dance will be semi-formal, and Gonzales hall will be elaborately decorated by Miss Ramirez and her committee.

Art Association Tea Adds
Pleasure To Party Series

With a hostess group comprising some of the leading women of the community, success was assured for plans for one of the popular Laguna Beach Art Association parties, held yesterday afternoon in the form of a tea at El Niguel Rancho, beautiful country home at El Toro of the Lewis P. Moultons.

Exactly a dozen hostesses joined with Mrs. Moulton in this gala event, which rivaled in charm, the opening party of the series when Mrs. James Irvine entertained at her home on San Joaquin ranch. Mesdames William H. Spurgeon, Harry Gale, Harvey Bennett, Emma D. White, O. H. Barr, J. M. Cloyes, Charles Spicer, Alan Revill, Harry L. Hanson, C. V. Newman and John Knox completed yesterday's hostess group with Mrs. Moulton. Each had invited many of her friends to enjoy the musical-tea which was the form their hospitality took.

Garden Setting
With every flower imaginable flaunting its colors and perfume on the balmy May breezes, the garden was an ideal spot in which to stage such a function. The wide porches were reserved for two phases of the hospitality. One offered setting for a flower-garlanded tea table at which Mrs. Spicer, Mrs. Cloyes, Mrs. Barr and Mrs. C. P. Boyer presided. From the opposite side of the house came the varying features of the musical program, the numbers ringing out over the garden in delightful fashion, after each guest artist had been introduced by Mrs. Hanson.

In the intervals afforded by the program, guests had the privilege of seeing thirteen of the twenty paintings by famous artists of the association, which will go as gifts to fortunate members of the organization at the conclusion of the party series. Artists represented by yesterday's informal exhibition were Thomas L. Hunt, Benjamin Brown, George K. Brandriff, Carl Yens, William Griffith, N. Gall Moulton, Ruth Peabody, A. V. Fullerton, Roy M. Ropp, Mrs. Gary, Eleanor Colburn, Virginia Woolley and Mrs. Seymour.

Program Features
Many of the community's favorite artists appeared on the program, which was presented from time to time throughout the afternoon. Miss Ruth Armstrong of this city, and Mrs. Stanley Kurtz of El Modena, were accompanists, the latter assisting her husband, Stanley Kurtz, in his solos, which included "Choral Dance" and "Nymphs and Shepherds."

Miss Thelma Glascock played at intervals such piano numbers as "Dance of the Gnomes" (Liszt); "Dance of the Blessed Hours" (Gluck) and various Chopin compositions including "Valse in A flat" and "The Cello Etude." Marie Bishop, Bess Nalle and Irma Huffman may formed a trio whose selections included "Goodnight, Goodnight Beloved," "The Star" (Rogers) and the Brahms "Lullaby."

Mrs. Hanson added variety with her accordion solos, choosing arias from various Italian grand operas. Solos sung by Mrs. Bishop included "Little Shepherd's Song" and "At the Well," and by Mrs. May, "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" and "Indian Love Call."

Among guests calling during the afternoon and lingering for the pleasant associations, the program and the genial hospitality purveyed by the hostess group were Mesdames L. J. Carden, H. MacVicker Smith, W. Maxwell Burke, A. M. Gardner, Gail Jordan, J. Mills Campbell, Alice N. Peterson, Nannette Richards, F. P. Earel, Leta M. J. C. French Students Lunch Together In Granas Home

One of the high lights of the Junior college year for members of the advanced class in French, has been the luncheon at which some of the members of the teacher, Miss Lella Watson, has entertained from time to time. Thursday, Miss Beatrice Granas gave another of these enjoyable affairs, entertaining in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Granas, 2404 Santiago street.

True to established custom, nothing but French was spoken from the time the guests left the college building until their return. Even Mrs. Granas had been coached by her daughter, in the greeting which she voiced upon their arrival in her home. Guests were agreed that her proficiency in preparing a French menu more than atoned for any linguistic lack. The menu was quite as inviting in its serving as it was in its appetizing appeal, for brilliant color was the keynote for luncheon linens and flowers in relief arrangement. Before the party broke up to return to the campus buildings, Miss Kathryn Bolton sang three new compositions by Miss Granas, for French poems which class members have enjoyed. The gifted young composer-hostess was at the piano as accompanist.

In the guest group were Miss Lella Watson, advisor, Miss Kathryn Bolton, Miss Charlotte Mock, Edward Robinson, Miss Helen Edwards and Miss Granas. Two former members of the group, Miss Mary Wallace and Miss Louise Sexton were invited also.

REV. C. D. HICKS

Not Yours, But You

Text: "I seek not yours but You," 2 Corinthians 12:14

Men are usually quick to suspect others of the devices to which they themselves are prone. It is very difficult for one who never does anything but with an eye to what he can make out of it, to believe there are any other people actuated with higher motives. So Paul, the writer of the text, had, over and over again, to meet the hateful charge of making money out of his apostleship. In this letter to the Corinthian church he refers to it more than once. Again and again he tells them he has taken nothing from them for his service and that he does not intend to do so in the future; but that he only desires them and not theirs.

Where did Paul get this passionate desire to possess these people for the cause of Christ? It was a spark from a sacred fire, a drop from an infinite ocean, an echo of a divine voice. And we can well take these words as setting forth Christ's claims upon us. I am sure we will all agree that Christ has well established these claims by the records of His life, by the pathos of his death, by the miracle of His Resurrection, by the glory of His Ascension and by the power of His Spirit. The Christian religion lies neither in our heads nor our hands but the deepest notion of it is an entire yielding up of ourselves to Christ our Lord. There is plenty of religion which is of the hand and the tongue and of forms and ceremonies and sacraments—external worship. There is also plenty of religion which surrenders to Him some of the more superficial parts of our personality while our old self sits undisturbed on his dark throne in the depths of our being. The only true notion of the Christian religion is expressed in the words of Paul in another place, "I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me."

If Christ succeeds in getting the Christian fully yielded to Him, He will get more than a mere person. He will get personal service. And herein lies the whole secret of world evangelization. Also herein lies the failure of the church in evangelizing the world or any part of it. This is Christ's only plan of spreading the Gospel. The church failing to carry out the plan of personal service is the reason the world is in the deplorable dilemma we now find it. We believe the Gospel contains the answer to every world's unsolved problem and if every one who names the name of Christ would heed the words of the text the solution to said problems would soon be forthcoming.

Then, too, if Christ can but secure the whole personality in a fully yielded condition he not only will have the whole person but will also possess everything belonging to the Christian. He who buys the sheep also is the possessor of the wool and if once fully yielded the Christian not only will be a servant of Christ but his possessions will belong to his Lord. Not you without yours, still less yours without you; but He will have you with yours. Stewardship and not ownership is the underlying principle upon which Christianity is based. Everything the child of God possesses is not his own to do with as he chooses but it is his, only as a steward to handle and dispose of in the fear of Christ. The spirit which brought Christ to die is the spirit which must instruct and inspire us to live.

This Movement Is Made Possible by These Outstanding Public Spirited Citizens Who Are Striving to Make Our Community a Better Place in Which to Live.

THE TINYMITES

Story by HAL COCHRAN Artwork by GEORGE SCARBO

"Now, wait," said Dotty. "Every bird just loves to eat, so I have heard. Before we sail into the air, let's give these birds a treat. Inside the old prospector's shack I saw some food. I'll dash right back and bring some out. It won't be long till they'll have lots to eat."

"A good idea," Golly cried. She followed Dotty right inside. They grabbed a bag of feed and dragged it out upon the ground. The birds seemed tickled as could be, and flapped their wings quite merrily. The Tines wished to watch them, so the whole bunch gathered 'round."

"Say, we can hand them all a thrill by putting feed in each one's bill," said Copsy. "Then they will not have to scoop their luncheon up."

The Tines tried it for a while and then fair Dotty, with a smile, explained, "We'd be much better off, if we just had a cup."

However, it worked out all right. It really was a funny sight to see the crazy scramble. Each bird wanted his full share.

Soon Windy said, "They've had enough. 'Tis better not to let them stuff. If we make them too fat they can't take us into the air."

The pelican they first had met exclaimed, "You're right. We should not get another bit. Come on, you birds, get ready for a trip."

"Well, let's get seated," Windy cried. "Hang on real tight, to save your hide." At following his good advice, no time at all was spent.

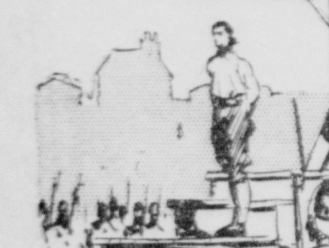

The four birds grabbed a hold and they soon flapped their wings and sailed away. The Tines were all aflutter, as through the air they went.

(The Tines get a sudden surprise in the next story.)

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

MARTYR SPY of AMERICA

THE British had invaded New York City in August, 1776, and had pushed back General Washington's forces to the north of Manhattan. In a day of tense quiet, Washington asked for a volunteer to enter the British lines and learn something of General Howe's plans.

A young captain from Connecticut, hardly past his 20s, stepped up. He was Nathan Hale, Yale graduate and school teacher. Disguised as a Dutch schoolmaster, he boldly went down to New York City and to General Howe's headquarters. On Sept. 21, however, he was detected and arrested. His trial was short. He was condemned to be hanged, and on the following day, sentence was executed. As he stood before the gallows, noose hanging over his head, he made a statement that has inspired the patriotism of succeeding generations. It was, "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

Hale's portrait on the current 1/2-cent stamp is reproduced from the statue, by Bela Lyon Pratt, which stands on the Yale campus in New Haven, Conn.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, May 23.—(U.P.)—Stocks continued to advance today in light trading. Bonds were mixed, cotton firm, and wheat lower.

All sections of the share list participated in the extension of yesterday's advances. Gains ranged to more than 2 points in the main list and a few issues including Greyhound were 2 or 3 points higher.

Greyhound ignored a poor first quarter report which was caused by floods and advanced sharply on declaration of an initial dividend of 80 cents a share. It touched 60 1/2, a case rose 2 points on a 1/2 point advance in Western Union and U. S. Tobacco.

A feature was a substantial rise in railroad equipment issues on indications the rails would increase their expenditures for maintenance and replacements. They have stepped up their purchases, helping sustain the rate of steel production.

More than a point each were noted in American Steel Foundries, Pullman, and Westinghouse.

Steel shares advanced on the rise in prices for third quarter delivery announced by Carnegie-Illinois, U. S. Steel subsidiary. U. S. Steel touched 45 1/2, Bethlehem 51 1/2, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube 54 1/2.

Sales approximated 440,000 shares, against 370,000 last Saturday. Curtiss-Wright, 121,000 shares, against 125,000 a week ago.

Dow Jones stock averages (preliminary): 1936 up 97.74, 1935 up 6.11; utility 20.90 up 0.25.

Weekly Citrus Review

LOS ANGELES, May 23.—(U.P.)—The market on California navel oranges was slightly easier on large sizes this week, with medium to small sizes somewhat higher. The demand has been good.

The bulk of the remaining navel will be cleaned up next week.

The light arrivals of valencias in the market have been taken in quite rapidly. The Canadian markets are again buying and with favorable weather, an increasing demand for valencias is anticipated.

Today's Guest Editorial

BALANCED BUDGET AND MEN OUT OF WORK

While it is a conceded fact that taking care of relief and the vast unemployment situation, has been taken advantage of to the extent that political machines have been built up for the selfish interest of those who place self above party, and has been the vehicle by which some have ridden to prominence and realized not only selfish ambitions but profits as well, it leaves one in the position of inquiry as to whether the end has justified the means and I for one think that it has.

If you will follow the news carefully you will note that the relief planks will be literally groaning with "made work" Dole, and other proposed expenditures which will be in the promises of the G. O. P. platform. The only real difference will be that the handling of the relief measures will be handled by the States and that 75 per cent will be furnished by Uncle Sam and 25 per cent by the States.

We must remember that unemployment numbered between 6 and 7 million in 1929 which we use as a prosperous year, which will be more understandable if we say that about 6 out of every 100 persons in this country was unemployed. This means that those who were employed had to take care of those who were not, which was not a particularly strenuous burden on any of us.

In 1930 this condition was changed to the point where the score was 91 at work and nine idle and we start to take notice.

Then in March, 1932, the condition was changed so radically that there were 77 people taking care of 23 people. Keep the figures in mind for you must realize that in the meantime that more people came of working age and this added another two people to the score and made the total of jobless 25 out of each 100 and left 75 people to take care of them or 77 to take care of 102 as you care to figure it.

With this premise to follow we can best realize the trend of these eventful years in a simplified chart. Here it is:

	Em- ployed	Unem- ployed	New Workers
March, 1929.....	94	6
March, 1930.....	91	9
March, 1931.....	85	15	1
March, 1932.....	77	23	2
March, 1933.....	72	28	3
March, 1934.....	80	20	3
March, 1935.....	79	21	4
Nov., 1935.....	82	18	4

(This table furnished by John Flynn)

Hence we had the bread lines, soup kitchens, and other emergency agencies which tried to serve those who were in dire straits as best we could.

The purchasing power of those upon relief was destroyed which made an over supply of all commodities, and a consequent curtailment of production and further unemployment. How long this could have gone on is impossible to say but it is safe to say that the American people are patient just so far, and already a seed of communism and hatred for those who were more fortunate was sown in the minds of many, and it calls to mind many instances of prominent people in the social scale who were afraid to give large parties or widely advertised social functions in view of the unfortunate who resented the lavish display of wealth.

We all know what has been done. Now who is going to pay the bill? There is only one answer to that, and that is the American people will pay the bill the same as any other debt that is contracted.

In the year 1932 the total wealth of the United States was estimated at 200 billions of dollars and the total debt was estimated at about 220 billions. Today the total debt is approximately 200 billions and the total wealth is about 250 billions. The condition is so clearly reversed that it is plain that we are certainly on the road to recovery, and in fact recovery is here now, to a great extent.

We have not spent our way into the debt but I contend that we have bought our way into recovery.

Take your own personal situation and figure it out for yourself if, or not, you are in a better financial condition than you were in 1932.

CRIME'S NEW NEMESIS

Decision of the Federal Communications Commission to shift its allocation of wave lengths, to provide for country-wide police radio network, certainly ought to lend impetus to the nation's war on crime.

The new network would be divided into zones, with a key relay station in each. With such a national police radio chain, enforcement officials would be able to co-ordinate a hunt for fleeing criminals over several states.

Minneapolis, New Orleans, St. Louis, Kansas City, Indianapolis, Detroit, and Davenport already have experimented with inter-city police radio. The important step now, the communications commission point out, is for other cities and states to join the movement.

THE STATE'S JOB

One must agree with Joseph B. Keenan, assistant United States attorney general, that federal law should not be substituted for state law. Keenan points out that there is an increasing tendency to let the "feds" do the job. When there is something wrong with a state law, the thing to do is to amend it, Keenan believes.

"I don't think it was right, for example," Keenan said recently, "to give Al Capone 10 years in prison for violation of income tax laws because authorities believed he was responsible for gang murders for which they could not get conviction under state laws."

The suppression of crime is primarily the job of states and cities. Uncle Sam can't be asked to do it all.

CHECKING THE PROMOTERS

Expansion in home building is coming back, and that means the return of high-pressure promotion such as characterized the real estate business before 1929.

Particularly timely, therefore, is the suggestion of James G. Caffrey, Cleveland realtor, that some sort of a governing body be set up to regulate the promoters. It is Caffrey's conclusion, from long experience in the business of home building and subdividing, that real estate promoters should be examined and certified just as security salesmen are regulated.

Looking back on the last ten years of real estate history in this country, Caffrey declares: "I am certain that the sub-division business, as formerly conducted, was one of the least sound and was mainly responsible for bringing on the real estate depression, which started years before the depression."

Mr. Caffrey's proposal, of course, might not correct this condition. But it is a step in the right direction. Certainly there should be no excuse for a repetition of the last nation-wide sub-division fiasco.

IT CAN BE DONE

Incredible as it may seem in these days of heavy public indebtedness, four states are completely free of debt—Florida, Ohio, Wisconsin and Nebraska. They are free because their constitutions prohibit public debt beyond a small figure.

Nebraska, for instance, reports a surplus of $21,000,000 in her treasury and boasts that she has neither a state income tax nor a sales tax; yet she has borne her share of the relief burden, paid for a new capital, and improved her schools.

It should be said, of course, that relief is borne largely by the municipalities in this state.

But granting even this exception the point remains that a pay-as-you-go policy can get results. Fortunately, Nebraska and her three debt-free sister states were provided with constitutional set-ups to make this sort of sound economics possible from the first.

But certainly it should not be too late for other states and municipalities to benefit by their example.

Criticism Of The League

THE LEAGUE IS TOO STRONG! WE DON'T WANT TO JOIN AN INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION THAT MIGHT CALL ON US TO SEND OUR BOYS 'OVER THERE' AGAIN

THE LEAGUE IS A FLOP! IT SHOULD HAVE USED FORCE IN DEALING WITH GERMANY AND ITALY AND JAPAN — IT WAS TOO WEAK!

Day By Day In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Almost unnoticed in the barrage of publicity attendant upon the handing down of the decision in the Guffey case was the establishment by the Supreme Court of the United States this week of what appears to be a new rule, the effect of which may be to reduce the number of cases which may come before the Federal courts for decision on constitutional questions.

Hereafter the complainant instead of the defendant must prove to the satisfaction of the Federal court that the matter in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $3000.

The old rule, which has been in effect for many years, made it necessary for the defendant—and in this instance it was the State of Indiana whose statute was being challenged—to prove to the court that the actual loss involved was too little to allow the federal courts to intervene.

Under the ruling which has just been reversed, the Federal courts were more or less compelled to take jurisdiction in every case involving constitutional questions where there was merely an allegation that the amount in controversy exceeded $3000, unless, of course, the defendant was able to prove this was not so.

It was possible under the old rule for parties to obtain a test of the constitutionality of a state law in moot cases. It could be done by what might be termed a collusive agreement between the complainant and the defendant to bring about a trial of the issue. The court will now inquire of its own motion into the facts concerning the taking of jurisdiction.

The new pronouncement will limit the number of cases because, when it becomes necessary to prove actual damage resulting from the enforcement of a state law instead of merely alleging that the net worth of a business affected is more than $3000, fewer cases will be brought to court.

It is not always possible to prove actual loss from the operation of a federal or state law before the statute goes into effect, though the complaining parties may be absolutely sure that damage in excess of $3000 will result. The complainant isn't prevented from coming into court and contending that his business will be damaged, but he can no longer merely make the claim and leave it to the Federal or State governments to prove through the district attorneys that this isn't going to happen.

great disadvantage and the firebugs in marked danger.

Steps have been taken by the California society in Washington, D. C., to save the log cabin of Joaquin Miller, "Poet of the Sierras," in the north part of the capital city. The owner of the land is preparing to have it moved in order to carry out plans of his landscape gardener, and the California society will supervise its removal and ask congress to provide a permanent site in Rock Creek park.

Constitutional proceedings, therefore, are likely to be delayed until a statute comes into operation more fully and when damage has actually occurred. The new rule may work hardship in some instances, but, on the other hand, a complaining company which cannot satisfy a court that is going to be damaged in excess of $3000 has no right apparently to be cluttering up the Federal courts with test suits, so many of which ultimately have to come to the supreme court for final decision anyway.

Chief Justice Hughes announced the new rule on behalf of a unanimous supreme court. The case at issue was an attack on the Indiana statute which dealt with rates that could be charged in retail installment sales. The dealer who brought the suit had not attempted through his attorneys to show that the damage would exceed $3000 for the simple reason that the state of Indiana, in denying the allegation, did not submit any proof and heretofore it hasn't been necessary for the complaining company to do it.

Without deciding the merits of the Indiana law itself—though the circuit court of appeals had declared the law unconstitutional—the supreme court dismissed the suits for lack of jurisdiction. As the rule now has been interpreted by Chief Justice Hughes, the complaining company must show that its loss has amounted to more than $3000 or that it is entirely prevented from doing business.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

THE UNDERSTANDING PARENT

There is nothing so heartening to an adolescent boy or girl than to have father or mother listen to a confession of wrong-doing with understanding affection and to hear, "I know how you feel. I felt like that more than once in my life." This comes with tremendous effect from a parent who is apparently without fault and deeply respected.

These children need to feel that they are in their parents' confidence. That father or mother will share their experiences with them, meet them frankly on whatever ground they chance to be. Too often parents withdraw from active participation in their children's struggles at this time, the very time when their help is most needed. "He is old enough to go on his own by now. I don't want to be bothered with every little whimper that he happens to feel like exploiting."

Adolescent children are lonely. They have not made any solid bridges between their childhood and their young maturity. Each new experience is an adventure accompanied by doubts and fears as well as hopes and triumphs. But nothing is sure as it was when father and mother were in the background ready to help at the call. There is no one to lean on, nobody to count on, if father and mother have let go.

Mistakes are common at this period. Even the best trained most intelligent children make them. Nobody, however wise, could hope to foresee, or arrange, or prevent any of the experiences that come to youth. They must meet them alone, solve them as best they can, and after the event talk things over with someone who cares. It is that feeling that somebody cares and is ready to help in time of need that these young people have. If fathers and mothers have not held the confidence of their children on through adolescence they find it difficult to talk to them. The children cannot find words to tell their story. Usually then, a stranger must take the parents' place. The parent who has traveled every step of the road beside his children, the one who can listen to confidences and confessions and say, "I know how you feel. I felt just that way when I was your age. I did something the same and I learned a lot by it"—that parent has an advantage that is priceless in his relationships with his children.

I am not advocating the sort of boasting that some people like to do in the presence of their children. Telling how bad they were, and how smart about getting away with it. That is out. What we want is the mature point of view that says, "Here is my child starting out the same road I traveled making the same mistakes, needing the same help. Maybe if I tell him my story it will shed light on his difficulty and help him solve his problems."

Gradually, as children grow they should be admitted into the home partnership, in every department, not neglecting the spiritual one where mutual confidence brings mutual affection and understanding.

THE PATCHWORK QUILT

By Eleanor Young Elliott
(Have You Any Patches to Add to It?)

LONELINESS

Mountain lilac, lark's song,
Mocking birds at night;
Seagulls wheeling inland,
Stately in their flight;
Sunset glow, moonrise,
Shadows on a hill;
Faint and far-off music
When the winds are still;
Grassy slopes, hedge-rows,
Paths that weave and wind;
You alone are absent—
I am deaf and blind.

CHRONICLES OF THE LITTLE GRAY HOUSE

It was the nicest thing to happen.

I was wandering rather aimlessly through the yard at the Little Gray House, picking some long-stemmed cormorant blooms, wondering how soon the crimson rambler would convert the shabby garage into a palace, and casting speculative glances at the tiny jade clusters of grapes that bear promise for the late summer.

And then it happened.

You see I happened to be wearing a frock whose flower design rivaled anything that was growing near. It appealed to a busy little hummingbird as offering unlimited possibilities, and he darted swiftly towards me. Poised on those marvelous wings, he remained stationary in the air a few inches from my shoulder. Then he would swoop down towards a fluttering fold of the skirt, and rise again within a foot of my face, until I could see every jewel on his throbbing little throat.

He was absolutely fearless even when I moved quietly around, and not until he satisfied his curiosity as to the flowers of my dress, did he dart away into the branches of the Christmas Tree.

MUSIC

Last night
"Elizabeth," my cricket mowed a tune....
The fiddle-strings twanged loud and free.

Then like
An obligato came an echo from My Mocker in the highest tree.
Just Another Patch.

A GIFT

In morning's glowing dawn I think
Of gifts that I may bring
To make you happy all the day,
To make your sad heart sing.

I think of all the lovely gifts
Of which I mortally dream,
And then...I simply bring you LOVE....
It is the gift supreme!

AUTHORITY

Dear Patchwork Lady:

Politics are confusing to some of us you know and it seems political party lines were rather blurred to a woman living in a neighborhood by town. When someone asked whether she was a Democrat or a Republican, she called to her husband, "Bill, is Roosevelt a Democrat or a Republican?" Bill replied that the president was a Democrat. "Well," she said turning to her questioner, "I'm a Democrat."

HAPPINESS

Happiness, Happiness,
You are my only aim.
Though you are often hard to find
I seek you just the same,
You are greater than the wealth
Of all the world, and fame.
Happiness, happiness,
You are my only aim.

Editor Register:
May I say that I appreciate very much your guest editorial idea. I assure you that I think the idea a splendid one and your courage in inviting me to write convinces me that you are sincere in your purpose.

I have, for some time, enjoyed reading the editorials of your paper and may I say that for the first time in several years I think you have a paper that sincerely expresses the opinion of most of the people of Orange county. You may not agree with the political opinion of the present administration, but I think you are sincere in your own opinions and that, after all, is what counts.

I trust that you will continue with the "Guest Editorials" for I think they serve two purposes. That of giving the people a chance to express themselves and at the same time showing how hard it is to write an editorial.

It is now, amazing to me how hard it really is to express the mental impulses in writing that readily criticize the writing of other people. I think that hereafter, I shall be more tolerant of all editorials until I first write an article myself on the same subject and see how it looks.

Again expressing my appreciation of your kind invitation I remain,

Yours sincerely,
S. A. CLEM.

Editor Register:

In considering the question as to whether the production of wealth is always beneficial to all the people as a whole, it might be well to first consider a few of the things which furnish the foundation upon which the strength and durability of our nation depends.

I believe all will agree that the greater the number of homes, both rural and urban, which are occupied by their owners, and the stronger the feeling of security and satisfaction possessed by these owners, the stronger and more enduring will be as a nation. But when we see the wealth of the nation rapidly accumulating in the hands of the few, the desire for home ownership is less and less, because of the greater insecurity felt by those who are undertaking to buy homes, consequently home ownership decreases and tenantry increases, with a consequent decrease of the strength and stability of the national life. Let me now call attention to a case where the production of wealth, contributes to the changed conditions indicated above. In 1929 a large tire manufacturing company employing 6500 men, was able to push their production of tires up to 10,000 tires per day. Ten years later, in 1939, by the introduction of labor saving machines, they retired 3000 men from their payroll and were still able to produce 30,000 tires per day. So, by investing the profits from the labor of 6500 men, in labor saving machines, they could lay off 3000 of the men and still triple their production.

No doubt a great number of these 3000 men had been looking forward to the time when they would be able to produce 30,000 tires per day. So, by investing the profits from the labor of 6500 men, in labor saving machines, they could lay off 3000 of the men and still triple their production.

MAY 23, 1911

One of the most hotly contested elections ever held in Orange county is in progress today in the Magnolia district. Incorporation of the town of Stanton is the question before the voters. The incorporation grew out of the proposed establishment by Anaheim of a sewer farm on the Gilbert ranch near Magnolia, and dissenting ranchers are planning the incorporation of a townsite to defeat such a movement. Results of the election are awaited with interest.

A fire alarm turned in at 1 o'clock this afternoon from the alarm box in front of Santa Ana hospital on Washington avenue, took the fire department in a hurry to put out the blaze started by a small boy in a hayfield. Danger from the fire was very little, but the rush of men and boys on bicycles to the scene of the blaze put the firemen at a great disadvantage and the firebugs in marked danger.
